The CIS region is especially well known for its huge project potential on converting gas into high-margin products including liquid fuels, chemicals and fertilisers. However, technology needs to be commercially and technically viable as well as compatible with the local specifics of this region.

In 2017, the CIS Petrochemicals conference will once again join forces with the co-located third CIS Gas Monetisation conference which will present and analyse the most economic and profitable ways of natural gas monetisation:

1. What are the top challenges facing the natural gas industry today? What is the future and long-term outlook of natural gas markets around the world?

2. What are the most practical and workable methane-rich gas conversion options specific to the regions with the highest rate of return?

3. What are the prospects of the large nitrogen-based fertilisers investment projects, including new ammonia, urea and methanol production capacity expansion in Russia and CIS?

4. What are the key benefits and the synergistic effect of a single technological complex and integration between gas production, processing and petrochemical production?
